Children's Health Study

A Letter to All Parents and Grandparents

Dear Health Concerned,

As a nutritionist, I know the value of eating right. As a parent and busy professional, I know how impossible that can be at times! That's why I have joined forces with thousands of other health care professionals, including the renowned pediatrician Dr. William Sears, to promote the Happy Healthy Kids Campaign.

The campaign's mission is to enroll 500,000 families by the year 2012 in the Children's Health Study, coordinated by the Children's Research Foundation. We will accomplish this by educating the public about the benefits of eating fruits and vegetables along with a whole foods nutrition supplement. The nutrition supplement the Foundation has chosen to offer to families is Juice Plus+. There is an impressive body of evidence that demonstrates this supplement's potential health benefits. So far, the results of the Children's Health Study have been very positive, with parents often reporting that their children need less medication, miss fewer days of school, and select healthier foods.

You can learn more about the Children's Health Study at <http://www.childrensresearch.org>. Please feel free to contact me if you are interested in getting involved in this grass roots campaign to help children and parents get healthy!

Wishing You Wholeness and Health,

Kim
